

ARCHITECTURAL TERRACOTTA - CONSERVATION & CURRENCY

Terracotta is a defining feature of the appearance of our urban landscape but treatments in the past have led to the deterioration of the material, leaving us with scarred buildings and funding challenges.

A cross-section of experts will present a series of talks sharing current good practice on the repair of architectural terracotta on site, the challenges faced on recent projects - Moseley Road Baths, The Natural History Museum, Harrods - and the commissioning of new terracotta to both conserve and create anew.

The day will be rounded off by a walking tour of several recent projects in Birmingham City.
